10th Annual Quilt Expo – A Time to Escape, Create and Celebrate

Quilters of all skill levels, aspiring quilters and even a few non-quilters will gather in Madison, Wis. this September to delight in an array of color and patterns at the 10th annual Quilt Expo.

Hundreds of quilts will be on display at the three-day event Sept. 4-6 — hosted by Wisconsin Public Television with Nancy Zieman Productions in Exhibition Hall at the Alliant Energy Center — and expert quilters will be on-hand to share their latest creations and techniques in dozens of educational lectures and Sit & Sew Workshops. All are invited to take part in this annual quilting celebration.

The event’s main attraction is the 10-category quilt contest, which showcases the unique talents of quilters from across the country and features a range of quilts from traditional bed-size to innovative pictorial quilts. Attendees will marvel at diverse ideas, designs, color combinations and fabric choices. Inspiration waits around every corner.

An extensive vendor mall will feature everything a shopper could ask for, including the latest machines, kits, fabrics, threads, notions and more. A raffle for quilt-related prizes, with proceeds supporting public television, and a community service project – "Quilt to Give" – are all part of the event.

"Quilt to Give" invites attendees to donate their materials and skills to help create bed-size quilts for those in need. Last year, Quilt Expo donated 29 quilts to families and individuals who lost their homes to natural disasters. All quilts made at this year’s Quilt Expo will be donated to Enchanted Makeovers, a shelter for women and children, and Domestic Abuse Intervention Services in Madison.

Nancy Zieman, host of public television's "Sewing With Nancy" will be on hand to meet with all Quilt Expo attendees. The fun will continue into the evening with special events that offer relaxing entertainment in which notable quilters share a lifetime of experience.
